The Law School of the University of Alabama takes pleasure in presenting its annual placement brochure, containing photographs and biographical data of the members of the Class of 1968. The purpose of this brochure is to furnish information about each of our graduating students which may be useful to you in recruiting Law School graduates for your firm, agency, or business.

Further information concerning any of these students may be obtained by writing Mr. Guy T. Huthnance, Director of Law School Placement, Box 1435, University, Alabama 35486. If you should prefer, you can, of course, communicate directly with any of these students by a letter addressed to the student in care of the Law School.

We cordially invite you to visit the Law School, or to send a representative here, to interview our students. Interviews will be arranged in the Law School to suit your convenience. The faculty and I would also be delighted to have the opportunity of showing you our dynamically developing program.

most of the judges of the state and federal courts, and a substantial number of the important public officials in the state. In addition, over 600 of the Law School’s graduates live beyond the borders of the state, and are engaged in law practice, public service, and business throughout the United States and the world. The School is rich in history and in the accomplishments of its graduates, and it is now undergoing substantial development in faculty size and strength, library sources, student enrollment, and curriculum.

The Law School has for many years been accredited by the American Bar Association and by the Association of American Law Schools; it is also on the approved list of the New York Board of Regents.

In recent years the Law School has strengthened its admissions requirements, and is continuing to do so. A college degree is required prior to entry, together with a satisfactory score on the nationally administered Law School Admission Test. Over thirty colleges and universities are represented in the student body. Presently persons are graduated three times a year, in January, May, and August.

The three-year curriculum is designed to prepare students intellectually and ethically for the practice of law in any common-law jurisdiction and for the public service, and to provide legal training for those who may desire to enter business. Increased attention is being given to training students in legal research, writing, and oral communication by intensive programs required of all first and second-year students. Courses and seminars in the third year have been expanded to include subjects such as comparative law, business planning, corporate taxation, and law and psychiatry. A required practice court and a defender program introduce students to basic skills in trial advocacy.
