CLASSES OF

1997-1998
On behalf of the Law Faculty, I am pleased to introduce our second- and third-year students to you. The information in this Placement Guide for Employers is provided to assist employers in making hiring decisions.

Students entering law school at The University of Alabama are bright and capable. Our admissions criteria are rigorous, and the admittees have impressive UGPAs and LSATs. However, we also consider other factors which indicate that a student will be successful in law school. You will see from the activities listed in the Guide that our students come to law school from different backgrounds and from a wide variety of academic, employment, and extracurricular experiences. Though our students have attended many different undergraduate institutions, many Alabamians and Southeasterners choose to come home to the state's only public law school for their legal education. Approximately 85% of our students are Alabama residents. Approximately 40% of the student body are female and 12% are minority group members.

We are confident that our students receive a quality legal education. Our curriculum—from traditional and policy offerings, to advocacy, skills, and clinical classes—is designed to prepare students well for any career path they choose. The Faculty is committed to instilling a professional ethic in our students. It is resourceful, dedicated, and highly regarded. We encourage close professional contact between students and the Faculty, and you will see in the student-activity section the many ways in which students work with Faculty members outside the classroom.

The facilities at The University of Alabama School of Law are among the best in the Southeast. Seminar and conference rooms help facilitate greater contact among Faculty, students, and the practicing bar and bench. We also are committed to having a premier Law Library. We encourage you to visit us on Bryant Drive in Tuscaloosa and to use our library facilities whenever you visit.

Our Career Services Office can help employers in many ways. If you are considering the employment of new lawyers, we will be pleased to arrange on-campus interviews with our students. If you cannot visit campus, we will arrange to have resumes sent to you. To make these arrangements, please contact the Career Services Office at Box 870382, Tuscaloosa, Alabama, 35487, (205)348-6479, (205)348-0738 (FAX). Please let us know if we can assist you.

We are proud of our students and welcome this opportunity to tell you more about them.

Ken Randall
Dean and McMillan Professor of Law
The Career Services Office publishes this guide, which is distributed to on-campus interviewers, recruiting conference participants, Alabama judicial officers, and other employers who request copies. The Career Services Office also serves legal employers with three convenient, efficient programs to match hiring needs with appropriately skilled and motivated lawyers trained at the University. Law students as well as experienced lawyers participate, seeking employment with law firms of all sizes and specializations, with corporations and businesses, with public-interest groups and government agencies, and with federal and state courts as judicial clerks.

On-Campus Interviewing. Employers meet a number of qualified candidates on one day, in one location. The Law School's comfortable facilities are available for interviews Monday through Saturday. Resumes are mailed to the employer in advance; the employer selects the interviewees and notifies the Career Services Office, which schedules the appointments.

Resume Forwarding. Employers who call the Career Services Office can obtain resumes from law students and alumni, for interviews at the employer's convenience. Positions are announced to students and graduates through postings and publications. Submitted resumes can be forwarded by the Law School to the employer in one mailing, or applicants can be told to contact the employer directly.

Alumni Network. Employers seeking experienced attorneys have a link through the Career Services Office to a broad group of practicing professionals: our alumni. The office keeps a registry of alumni seeking to relocate and announces positions in regular and special alumni bulletins.

Employers also may be interested in larger "job fairs" in which the Law School participates. Five such regional and national fairs take place annually.

Southeastern Law Placement Consortium
This job fair is held in Atlanta in the fall of each year. It is the oldest and most successful cooperative, off-campus interviewing program for law firms. SELPC offers employers nationwide the opportunity to conveniently recruit summer associates and entry-level attorneys from 12 Southeastern law schools.

Mid-South Law Placement Consortium
This job fair is held in Nashville each February. It serves law firms in Arkansas, Kentucky, Tennessee, and parts of Alabama, Georgia, North Carolina, and South Carolina. Legal employers from the Southeast recruit students from eight Southeastern schools for summer clerkships and permanent positions.

Southeastern Law Schools Minority Job Fair
This job fair is held each August for 38 participating law schools. It is designed for students of color.
interested in interviewing with employers from around the nation.

Patent Law Interview Program
This job fair is held in Chicago each August. Through this program patent law employers are able to interview students who meet patent bar examination requirements.

National Public Interest Career Fair
This job fair is held in Washington, D.C., each fall. It provides students and alumni a unique opportunity to collect information and to interview with representatives of government agencies, legal services offices, civil rights organizations, consumer protection groups, environmental advocacy groups, and others.

Other Career Services Programs.
The Career Services Office also provides students with ways to improve their employment prospects. In addition to the services and events outlined above, there are various resume writing, job search, and interviewing skills programs. Offerings include guest speakers, panel discussions, mock interviews, and a shadow program. In addition, the Career Services Office maintains a library of directories and other employment guides, "how-to" books, and WestLaw and Lexis terminals.

Nondiscrimination Policy

The University of Alabama School of Law is committed to a policy of nondiscrimination based on sex, race, color, national origin, religion, age, physical disability, or sexual orientation. Only employers in agreement with this policy may use services of the Law School. However, the military does interview on campus. By using the services, employers assure the Law School that they observe this nondiscrimination policy or will notify the Career Services Office otherwise. The University of Alabama is an equal employment, equal educational opportunity institution.
Grading and Ranking Practices

Students entering The University of Alabama School of Law are assigned to one of two sections. They are ranked within their section for the first five semesters of the six-semester curriculum. During the final semester, each student's rank is determined both within the section and overall in the class.

The law faculty of The University of Alabama in 1990 adopted the following hortatory norms and ranges governing the distribution of grades (recommendatory only).

Profile of the Class of 1995

The University of Alabama School of Law typically awards degrees to 160–180 graduates each year. During the 1995–96 academic year, 566 students were enrolled full-time. More than 900 applications were received for the 1995–96 entering class (the Class of 1998), representing ten states and 54 collegiate institutions. There were 177 in-state enrollments, and 16 out-of-state enrollments. One foreign country was represented.
Employment Profile of the Class of 1995

A survey of the Class of 1995 University of Alabama Law School graduates shows that more than 91% of the 177 class members were known to have secured employment within nine months of receiving their law degrees. The majority of the students, around 77%, have found jobs in Alabama.

The chart below presents a summary of the types of employment (or other pursuits) and geographic locations, reported by the surveyed graduates.

Law Journals

Second- and third-year students in The University of Alabama School of Law gain experience in positions on the editorial staffs of several legal publications.

Alabama Law Review
- Scholarly legal periodical published three times annually.
- Top 10% of beginning second-year students automatically eligible.
- Remaining top 50% of beginning second-year students may compete for positions.

The Journal of the Legal Profession
- First U.S. periodical dedicated to exploring ethical issues and problems confronting the legal profession.
- Beginning second-year students or more advanced students in the top 25% of their classes compete for editorial board positions.
- Published once annually.

Law and Psychology Review
- One of the first periodicals to approach the discipline of law from a behavioral-sciences perspective.
- Published once annually featuring both student-researched and written articles and submissions from legal scholars and psychologists of note.

The American Journal of Tax Policy
- Published twice annually; contains articles by tax lawyers and professors on tax policy issues.
- Sponsored by the American College of Tax Counsel.
- Conducts a student writing contest each year.

Trial Advocacy Program

The Trial Advocacy Program offers students another means of enhancing legal skills. The program has gained regional and national recognition since it began in 1974. In the program students strive to master the five aspects of trial practice: law, procedure, ethics, tactics, and skills. They are taught the "why" of law, procedure, ethics, and tactics, in addition to the "how" of litigation skills and techniques.

The University of Alabama presently participates in three nationally recognized trial advocacy competitions: The National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers (NACDL) Criminal Trial Competition; The National Trial Competition; and The National Student Trial Advocacy Competition (ATLA).

Alabama teams regularly represent the school well in competitions. In 1995 Alabama's trial teams swept the Southern Region, winning both divisions of the regional competition and placing two teams in the top ten in the regional finals. In national competition the teams finished fifth and ninth.

The Law School's appellate advocacy program offers students an additional means of enhancing legal skills. During the spring semester second-year students may choose to participate in the John A. Campbell Moot Court Competition. From this competition twenty-four students are selected to be members of the next year's John A. Campbell Moot Court Board. These students assist the Legal Writing Lecturers in the first-year moot court program, a required first-year class.

Four students are also selected from the Moot Court Board to be members of the National Moot Court Team. This team competes in regional and national competitions involving constitutional and other federal law issues.

In 1995, the National Moot Court Team advanced from regional to national competition. The team placed in the top 16 and their brief was ranked seventh.

Six students from the John A. Campbell Moot Court Board are also selected to be members of the Phillip C. Jessup International Law Moot Court Team. These students write briefs and act as oral advocates in hypothetical cases typifying those heard before the International Court of Justice. The team has traditionally done well in competition and was awarded the prize for best brief, or memorial, in international competition two years in a row.

The Frederick Douglass Moot Court Competition Team participates in an inter-law school appellate competition sponsored annually by the National Black Law Students Association. Second- and third-year students are selected from an intra-law school competition.

Three judges from the U.S. Court of Appeals moderated the final round of the 1996 John A. Campbell Moot Court Competition: (L-R) Judge Robert Mayer from the Federal Circuit, Judge Carol Los Mansmann from the Third Circuit, and Judge Paul Niemeyer from the Second Circuit.
