CAREER SERVICES
Classes of 1999–2000
I welcome the opportunity, as Dean of The University of Alabama School of Law, to introduce you to our second- and third-year students. We are proud of the accomplishments of these students. They entered law school with impressive UGPa's and LSATS, have developed impressive academic records, and already have participated in many activities connected with the legal profession.

Though our students have attended many undergraduate institutions, many Alabamians and Southeasterners choose to come home to the State’s only public law school for their legal education. Approximately 85% of our students are Alabama residents. Approximately 40% of the student body are female, and 12% are minority group members.

We are confident that our students receive a quality legal education. Our curriculum, from traditional and policy offerings to advocacy, skills and clinical classes, is designed to prepare students well for any career path they choose.

The University of Alabama School of Law continues to make progress as a strong state law school with an excellent regional reputation and a growing national reputation. Listed below are several accomplishments of the last academic year.

- In recognition of a substantial gift commitment from Richard and Anita Bounds of Mobile, the Law Library was named the Bounds Law Library in memory of Donald Richard Bounds, Jr. and Russell Hampton Bounds.
- The William Dudley Melton Multimedia Classroom, with cutting edge interactive and distance learning capabilities, was opened during the fall 1997 semester.
- The John C. Payne Special Collections Room, a state of the art special collections facility in the Bounds Law Library, was dedicated in October 1997.
- The front plaza has been renovated and named for Camille Wright Cook (professor emeritus and member of the Class of 1948), and the front grounds of the Law School have been re-landscaped with a gift from the wife of Justice Pellham Merril (a member of the Alabama Supreme Court from 1952 to 1976 and a member of the Class of 1932).
- We are exploring an expansion of the Law Center to provide additional classroom, student activity, library and clinical office and conference space.
- Our trial and appellate advocacy teams continue their tradition of excellence. In the last academic year three teams advanced from regional to national competition, and our Bankruptcy Moot Court Team won its national championship. Two of the trial advocacy teams swept their regional competition, receiving the two highest scores. Our Frederick Douglass Moot Court Team won two awards in national competition for its written brief.
- An Alabama law student won First Prize in a national legal essay competition sponsored by Georgetown University School of Law and the W.M. Keck Foundation. Another student received the Outstanding Law Student Award from the National Association of Women Lawyers. A third student, who had won the prize for her essay on arbitration from the National Commercial Law League, will have her article published.
- We continue to recruit and hire faculty members with distinguished academic credentials and backgrounds. Our new faculty for the coming year includes Alan Durham, a law graduate from the University of California, Berkeley, where he was a Law Review editor and a member of Order of the Coif. Mr. Durham has been in private practice in California for ten years, litigating high-technology intellectual property cases. He will teach intellectual property classes and a seminar in computers and the law. Dan Filler, an NYU graduate also will join the faculty. Mr. Filler was a member of the NYU Law Review and clerked on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit. He practiced with Debevoise & Plimpton and served in the public defenders' offices in Philadelphia and Bronx, New York, before beginning as an assistant professor at Alabama. Mr. Filler will primarily teach disability law (in the clinic) and juvenile law.

Distinguished visiting scholars continue to enhance the academic environment at The University of Alabama School of Law. Professor Ronald Rotunda of the University of Illinois law faculty will visit the Law School this Spring and teach the first-year constitutional law class. Professor Jon Bruce of the Vanderbilt law faculty also will visit in the spring semester. He will teach the first-year property courses as well as an elective land use planning course. Professor Michael Wallace Gordon of the law faculty at the University of Florida will visit this fall semester and teach classes in international law, an area in which he is well-known. Professor Kyle Logue, from the University of Michigan law faculty, visited Alabama this summer, when he taught insurance. Judge Eric Bruggink, from the U.S. Court of Claims and an Alabama law graduate, taught two classes at the Law School this summer.

The Law School's endowed lecture series brings distinguished scholars and judges to the campus. Professor Richard Delgado, from the law faculty at Colorado, will be this year's Hugo Black Lecturer. Professor Lea Brilmeyer of the Yale Law School is the Daniel J. Meador Lecturer for the upcoming academic year. United States Supreme Court Associate Justice Antonin Scalia will deliver the Albritton Lecture in April 1999.

I hope the above developments help demonstrate that our students are receiving a top-rate legal education at Alabama, training them well for successful careers in the law.

Our Career Services Office can help employers in many ways. If you are considering the employment of new lawyers, we will be pleased to arrange on-campus interviews with our students. If you cannot visit campus, we will arrange to have resumes sent to you. To make arrangements, contact the Career Services Office at Box 870382, Tuscaloosa, Alabama 35487-0382, (205) 348-6479 (phone), (205) 348-0738 (fax), or careers@law.ua.edu.

CAREER SERVICES OFFICE

The Career Services Office offers a variety of services to our students, alumni and employers. One of these services is the publication of this placement guide for employers. The guide is widely distributed to on-campus interviewers, the Alabama judiciary, job fair participants, and other employers who request copies. The Career Services Office also offers employers programs such as “on-campus interviewing,” for employers who want to interview a large number of students in a time- and cost-efficient manner, and “resume forwarding,” for employers who do not have the time or staffing to come on campus to interview or who would simply rather receive resumes and make individual arrangements with the students they want to interview. The Career Services Office staff also works with employers to help them fill their hiring needs for experienced attorneys by posting their positions to be filled in our Alumni Job Bulletin (available monthly by mail and updated weekly on the Internet) or to assist them in registering for and attending one or more of the job fairs co-sponsored by the Career Services Office.

On-Campus Interviewing

One of the easiest methods for employers to interview candidates for summer or for permanent employment is to come on campus and interview many candidates on one or two pre-selected days. The Career Services Office will post a notice that an employer is scheduled to come to the campus on certain dates. Students and/or alumni who are interested in interviewing will submit their resumes to us and we will then forward those resumes to the employer for review and selection of interviewees. We then post a list of the names of the students or alumni chosen to be interviewed, times are selected by the students, a final schedule is prepared, and the employer then interviews students in comfortable interview rooms available in the Career Services Office or at other locations within the Law School.

Resume Forwarding

This program is similar to on-campus interviewing except that employers make arrangements with their chosen candidates to interview at their own offices at times convenient to both parties. The Career Services Office will post a notice of open positions on the Job Boards in the Law School and in the Alumni Job Bulletin, collect resumes and send them to employers, or employers can have the candidates mail their resumes directly to them.

Alumni Job Bulletin

Employers seeking to hire experienced attorneys are encouraged to call the Career Services Office and we will post a position announcement in our Alumni Job Bulletin at no cost to the employer. For quick and easy access, the Alumni Job Bulletin is available through the Internet as a part of the Law School’s home page at www.law.ua.edu/placement. However, because the actual position announcements (which are updated on a weekly basis) are available only to alumni and employers, a password must be obtained from the Career Services Office before gaining access to the listings. The Alumni Job Bulletin is also published monthly and available by mail for a nominal subscription rate of $15.00 a year. Call or write the Career Services Office if you would like to obtain the Internet password, want your name to be placed on our mailing list, or wish to post a position announcement in the Alumni Job Bulletin.

Job Fairs

Southeastern Law Placement Consortium (SELPC). This job fair is held in Atlanta in the fall of each year. It is the oldest and most successful cooperative, off-campus interviewing program for law firms. SELPC offers employers nationwide the opportunity to conveniently recruit summer associates and entry-level attorneys from twelve southeastern Law Schools at one place.

Mid-South Law Placement Consortium. This job fair is normally held in Nashville in late Winter or early Spring, although it was not held in 1998. It serves law firms in Arkansas, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, North Carolina, and South Carolina. Legal employers from the Southeast recruit students from nine southeastern schools for summer clerkships and permanent positions.

Southeastern Minority Job Fair. This job fair is held each August for 43 participating Law Schools. While it is designed primarily for minority students, this job fair is open to all students who are interested in interviewing with employers from around the nation.

Patent Law Interview Program. This job fair is held in Chicago each August. Through this program, patent law employers are able to interview students who meet patent bar examination requirements.

National Public Interest Career Fair. This job fair is held in Washington, D.C., each fall. It provides students and alumni a unique opportunity to collect information about and to interview with representatives of government agencies, legal-services offices, civil rights organizations, consumer protection groups, environmental advocacy groups, and other similar entities.

Additional Career Services Programs

The Career Services Office also offers counseling, resume writing workshops, job search programs and mock interviews to assist students in formulating and effectively executing a career development plan suited to each student’s interests and individual skills. In the last several years, our students have been offered the opportunity to take part in the very popular and enlightening shadow program, which allows those who participate to spend a day with a chosen attorney or judge and to observe what a workplace for that individual is like. Many alumni and other attorneys generously give of their time to assist our office during the year by leading panel discussions, giving presentations about various areas of legal employment, or serving as guest speakers for programs on topics of interest raised by our students. One very popular afternoon program that the Career Services Office periodically sponsors is Career Options Day, during which approximately 20 legal employers are invited to spend half a day in the Law School talking to individual students about various opportunities for attorneys in their respective firms/companies.

Nondiscrimination Policy

The University of Alabama School of Law is committed to a policy of equal opportunity and of nondiscrimination based on sex, race, color, national origin, religion, age, disability, or sexual orientation. Only employers who are in agreement with this policy may use the services of the Law School. By using the Law School’s services, employers assure the Law School that they observe this nondiscrimination policy. The University of Alabama is an equal employment and equal educational opportunity institution.
GRADING AND RANKING PRACTICES

Students entering The University of Alabama School of Law are assigned to one of two sections. They are ranked within their section for the first five semesters of the six-semester curriculum. During the final semester, each student’s rank is determined both within the section and overall within the class.

The law faculty of The University of Alabama in 1990 adopted the following hortatory norms and ranges governing the distribution of grades (recommendatory only).

EMPLOYMENT PROFILE OF THE CLASS OF 1997

A recent survey reveals that approximately 98% of our Law School’s 1997 graduates have secured employment. Although 86% of the ’97 class accepted employment within Alabama, our graduates are located in many geographical areas in and outside the United States. We received employment information from 179 out of 180 ’97 graduates. From this data we noticed only 19% of the class of 1997 accepted government jobs as compared to almost 23% of the class of 1996 who accepted government jobs. Traditionally, the private practice area employs most law graduates. Consequently, 70% of the ’97 class secured employment in this area. There was an increase in employment in the business sector with 7% of the ’97 graduates accepting employment in that area as compared to 5% of the ’96 graduates who accepted employment in that area. Employment percentages for most other areas of law remained comparable to those of 1996.

Of the 49 class members from the ’97 class who gave salary information, we found that entry-level salaries ranged from $24,000 to $70,000. This data showed a 25th percentile salary of $33,000 and a 75th percentile salary of $56,000.
TRIAL ADVOCACY PROGRAM

The Trial Advocacy Program offers students another means of enhancing their legal skills. The program has gained regional and national recognition since it began in 1974. In the program, students strive to master the five aspects of trial practice: law, procedure, ethics, tactics, and skills.

The University of Alabama presently participates in three nationally recognized trial advocacy competitions: The National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers (NACDL) Criminal Trial Competition; The National Trial Competition; and The National Student Trial Advocacy Competition (ATLA).

Alabama teams regularly represent the school well in competitions. For example, the 1997-98 trial teams swept the Southeastern Regional Trial Competition Championship in New Orleans, LA, sending two teams to the national rounds in Washington, DC.

APPELLATE ADVOCACY PROGRAM

The Law School's Appellate Advocacy Program offers students the means to enhance their appellate skills. During the spring semester, second-year students may choose to participate in the John A. Campbell Moot Court Competition. From this competition, twenty-four students are selected to be members of the next year's John A. Campbell Moot Court Board. These students conduct the next year's competitions and assist the Legal Writing Lecturers in the first-year Moot Court class.

Four students are selected from the Moot Court Board to be members of the National Moot Court Team. This team competes in Regional and National competitions involving constitutional and other federal law issues. Also, six students from the Moot Court Board are selected to be members of the Phillip C. Jessup International Law Moot Court Team. These students write briefs and act as oral advocates in hypothetical cases typifying those heard before the International Court of Justice. Our Moot Court teams traditionally do well in the Regional and National competitions. In the last 21 years, 11 teams have progressed to the national competition from the regional finals. The 1996-97 Jessup International Law Moot Court team won their regional competition and in 1994 and 1995 the Jessup Team won awards for submitting the best memorial (brief) in international competition. Most recently, the 1998 Moot Court Team won the regional competition and advanced to the national competition in New York City. The '98 team won the oral competition portion of both rounds. Alabama's 1998 Duberstein Bankruptcy Moot Court Team won first place in the National competition.

The Frederick Douglass Moot Court Competition Team participates in an intralaw school appellate competition sponsored annually by the Black Law Students Association. Second- and third-year students are selected from an intralaw school competition. The 1996-97 team finished second in the regional competition held in Atlanta and advanced to the eighth round in the national competition in Las Vegas. One of the team members was named Best Oral Advocate in the national competition in 1997. The 1998 team won the regional competition in New Orleans, including the best brief award, and advanced to the national competition in Boston, MA, where they also won the best overall brief award, as well as the best appellants brief award.

LAW JOURNALS

Second- and third-year students in The University of Alabama School of Law gain experience in positions on the editorial staffs of several legal publications.

Alabama Law Review
- Scholarly legal periodical published three times a year.
- Top 10% of beginning second-year students automatically eligible.
- Remaining top 50% of beginning second-year students may compete for positions.

The Journal of the Legal Profession
- First U.S. periodical dedicated to exploring ethical issues and problems confronting the legal profession.
- Beginning second-year students or more advanced students in the top 25% of their classes compete for editorial board positions.
- Published once annually.

Law and Psychology Review
- One of the first periodicals to approach the discipline of law from a behavioral-sciences perspective.
- Published once annually featuring both student-researched and written articles and submissions from legal scholars and psychologists of note.

The American Journal of Tax Policy
- Published twice annually containing articles by tax lawyers and professors on tax policy issues.
- Sponsored by the American College of Tax Counsel.
- Conducts a student writing contest each year.
