Classes of 2003-2004
The University of Alabama School of Law aspires to provide its students with an excellent legal education for every career path they will follow. Since its establishment in 1872, the State’s only public law school has educated the leaders of Alabama’s political, business, and legal communities. The competitive admissions process results in a diverse student body that is bright, hard-working, and ethical. The broad-ranging curriculum – rich in traditional law and policy classes, courses in emerging areas of law, clinical offerings, and advocacy experiences – provides students with an analytical and experiential background for entering the legal profession. The Faculty is equally impressive. Outstanding teachers – committed to the classroom, accessible to students, and involved in research and public service – mentor the students and serve as role models. A devoted and highly regarded cadre of adjunct professors, from the practicing bar and bench, enhances our curriculum.

The educational environment at Alabama is strong. In Fall 2002, Chief Justice William Rehnquist will present the Albritton Lecture. Law professors from the University of Washington and the University of Pennsylvania will present the Hugo Black Lecture and the Daniel Meador Lecture, respectively, during the next academic year. Other outstanding visiting lecturers – presenting different perspectives on various subjects – also will speak at Alabama and teach classes in their areas of expertise in the coming year. The Law School’s Public Interest Institute and Disability Law Institute continue to provide additional learning and training opportunities. Our exchange programs with Australian National University and the University of Fribourg are flourishing. We continue to enjoy great successes with our trial advocacy and moot court teams.

The University of Alabama is proud of its graduates, students, Faculty, and staff. We hope that our Top 50 national ranking symbolizes our traditions and progress. On behalf of The University of Alabama School of Law, I express appreciation to all those who recruit our law students for employment. Please tell me at any time how our Law School can better serve the needs of the profession.

Ken Randall
Dean and McMillan Professor of Law
The Career Services Office (CSO) offers a variety of services to our students, alumni, and employers. One of these services is the publication of this placement guide for employers. The guide is widely distributed to on-campus interviewers, the Alabama judiciary, job fair participants, and other employers who request copies. The Career Services Office also offers employers programs such as on-campus interviewing, for employers who want to interview a large number of students in a time- and cost-efficient manner, and resume forwarding, for employers who do not have the time or staffing to come on campus to interview or who would simply rather receive resumes and make individual arrangements with the students they want to interview. The Career Services Office staff works with employers to help them fill their hiring needs for experienced attorneys by posting their positions to be filled in our Alumni Job Bulletin (available monthly by mail and updated weekly on the Internet) or to assist them in registering for and attending one or more of the job fairs co-sponsored by the Career Services Office.

ON-CAMPUS INTERVIEWING
One of the easiest methods for employers to select summer or permanent employees is to come on campus and interview many candidates on one or two pre-selected days. The Career Services Office posts a notice that an employer is scheduled to come to the campus on certain dates. Students and/or alumni who are interested in interviewing submit their resumes to us and we then forward those resumes to the employer for review and selection of interviewees. We then post a list of the names of the students or alumni chosen to be interviewed, times are selected by the students, a final schedule is prepared, and the employer then interviews students in a comfortable interview room available in the Career Services Office or at another location within the Law School.

RESUME FORWARDING
This program is similar to on-campus interviewing except that employers make arrangements with their chosen candidates to interview at their offices at times convenient to both parties. The Career Services Office posts notices of open positions on the Job Board in the Law School and in the Alumni Job Bulletin, collects resumes and sends them to employers, or employers have the candidates mail their resumes directly to them.

ALUMNI JOB BULLETIN
Employers seeking to hire experienced attorneys are encouraged to call the Career Services Office and we will post a position announcement in our Alumni Job Bulletin at no cost to the employers. For quick and easy access, the Alumni Job Bulletin is available through the Internet as a part of the Law School’s home page at www.law.ua.edu/placement. However, because the actual position announcements (which are updated on a weekly basis) are available online only to alumni and employers, a password must be obtained from the Career Services Office before gaining access to the listings. The Alumni Job Bulletin is also published monthly and available by mail for a nominal subscription rate of $20.00 a year. Contact the Career Services Office if you would like to obtain the Internet password, want your name to be placed on our mailing list, or wish to post a position announcement in the Alumni Job Bulletin.

Nondiscrimination Policy
The University of Alabama School of Law is committed to a policy of equal opportunity and of nondiscrimination based on race, color, national origin, religion, sex, age, handicap or disability, or sexual orientation. It does not discriminate on these factors in administering its educational policies; admission policies; employment, promotion, and compensation policies; financial aid and scholarship programs; and other school-related activities. Only employers in agreement with this policy may use the services of the Law School. By using the Law School’s services, employers assure the Law School that they observe this nondiscrimination policy. By state law, the military is allowed to interview at the Law School.
Additional Programs

The Career Services Office also offers counseling, resume writing workshops, job search programs and mock interviews to assist students in formulating and effectively executing a career development plan suited to each student’s interests and individual skills. In the last several years, our students have been offered the opportunity to take part in the very popular and enlightening shadow program, which allows those who participate to spend a day with a chosen attorney or judge and to observe what a workday for that individual is like. Many alumni and other attorneys generously give of their time to assist our office during the year by leading panel discussions, giving presentations about various areas of legal employment, or serving as guest speakers for programs on topics of interest raised by our students. Job Fairs

Employers may be interested in larger job fairs which are either co-sponsored by the Law School or in which we participate. The Law School participates in at least five such regional or national job fairs annually. If you want to take part in or receive additional information on any of these job fairs, please contact us.

Southeastern Law Placement Consortium (SE LPC). This job fair is held in Atlanta in the fall of each year. It is the oldest and most successful cooperative off-campus interviewing program for law firms and other legal employers. SELPC offers employers nationwide the opportunity to conveniently recruit summer associates and entry-level attorneys from twelve southeastern law schools at one place. See www.selpc.org for more information.

Southeastern Minority Job Fair (SEM JF). This job fair is held each August for approximately 45 participating law schools. While it is designed primarily for minority students, this job fair is open to all students who are interested in interviewing with employers from around the nation.

Atlanta Legal Hiring Consortium. This job fair was established in the fall of 2001 to be held each spring in Atlanta, GA. It is sponsored by eleven selected law schools from six southeastern states. Small to medium sized legal employers within the state of Georgia and surrounding areas attend. These legal employers recruit students for summer clerkships and permanent positions.

Patent Law Interview Program. This job fair is held in Chicago each August. Through this program, patent law employers are able to interview students from law schools around the country who meet patent bar examination requirements.

National Public Interest Career Fair. This job fair is held in Washington, D.C., each fall. It provides students and alumni a unique opportunity to collect information about and to interview with representatives of government agencies, legal services offices, civil rights organizations, consumer protection groups, environmental advocacy groups, and other similar entities in one location.
Trial and Appellate Advocacy Competitions

Trial Advocacy Competitions
The University of Alabama School of Law’s trial advocacy teams continue our tradition of excellence. Last year, both the U.S. News annual ranking of Law Schools and the National Institute for Trial Advocacy Tournament of Champions ranked Alabama’s trial advocacy teams among the best in the Nation. Since 1990, Alabama teams have won two national championships and thirteen regional championships. This year the teams continued their winning tradition. The teams won the Southeast region of the National Trial Competition and placed second in the Nation in the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers Trial Competition. Participation on trial teams is based on an intra-school trial competition open to all second- and third-year students. As members of a trial team, students must spend many hours preparing for the competition. Trial team classes are capstone courses requiring students to integrate much of what they have studied in other law school courses. The trials require a thorough understanding of the rules of evidence and procedure and how these rules apply in real trials. Each case also requires an in-depth understanding of the specific cause of action, the potential remedies, and available defenses. At the competitions, students conduct a full trial before a real judge and a jury of practicing lawyers. The competitions are held in courthouses throughout the country. In recent years Alabama’s trial teams have competed in Chicago, Los Angeles, Nashville, Dallas, Washington, New Orleans, San Antonio, Syracuse, San Diego and other locations. Professor Steve Emens and Robert Prince are the coaches for the Law School’s trial teams.

Appellate Advocacy Competitions
John A. Campbell Moot Court Competition. During the spring semester, second-year students may choose to participate in the John A. Campbell Moot Court Competition. From this competition, twenty-five students are selected to be members of the next year’s Campbell Moot Court Board. These students conduct the next year’s competition.

National Moot Court Competition. Four students (three team members and one student manager) are selected from the Moot Court Board to be members of the National Moot Court Team. Coached by Professor Carol Rice Andrews, this team competes in regional and national competitions involving constitutional and other federal law issues.

Phillip C. Jessup International Law Moot Court Team. Five students from the Moot Court Board are selected to be members of the Phillip C. Jessup International Law Moot Court Team. These students write briefs and act as oral advocates in hypothetical cases before the International Court of Justice. Alabama’s team traditionally does very well in the regional competition, and has advanced to the international rounds in Washington, D.C., two of the last three years. Alabama’s Jessup team is coached by Professor Jonathan S. Berck. For more information on the team, visit the team’s website at http://www.law.ua.edu/berck/Jessup/Jessup.htm.

Environmental Law Moot Court Team. The University of Alabama School of Law also sponsors a National Environmental Law Moot Court Team. The team has performed quite well.

The final round of the Moot Court Competition held during Law Week, 2002.
during the first four years of its existence. The 2000 team, for example, competed in the National Competition at Pace University in New York and finished second out of a tough field of 63 teams from Canada and the U.S. Team members also received individual recognition including four best oral advocate awards and two second-best oral advocate awards. The 2002 team advanced to the semi-final round and amassed two best oralist awards. The National Environmental Law Moot Court Team is coached by Professor Bill Andreen.

Robert F. Wagner National Labor and Employment Moot Court Team. Three students are selected from the Campbell Moot Court Board to be members of the Wagner Labor and Employment Law Moot Court Team. The competition is hosted by New York Law School in downtown Manhattan, and is the largest student-administered moot court competition in the nation. The team writes an appellate brief and presents oral arguments in a hypothetical case which involves current issues of labor law and employment law, and competes against teams from law schools throughout the country. The team is coached by Adjunct Professor Roger Williams.

The Frederick Douglass Moot Court Team. The Frederick Douglass Moot Court Competition Team participates in an inter-law school appellate competition sponsored annually by the Black Law Students Association. Second- and third-year students are selected from an intra-law school competition. Professor Jerome A. Hoffman serves the team as faculty advisor.

Duberstein Bankruptcy Moot Court Team. Alabama’s 1998 Duberstein Bankruptcy Moot Court Team won first place in the National competition hosted by St. Johns University in New York. The 1999 Duberstein Bankruptcy Moot Court Team won third place in the National competition and ranked number one in the best brief competition. The 2001 and 2002 teams advanced to the semi- and quarter-finals, respectively. Mark P. Williams, a Birmingham alumnus and past Chairman of the Bankruptcy and Commercial Law section of the Alabama State Bar, serves as advisor for the team.

National Tax Moot Court Team. In Spring 2000, The University of Alabama School of Law participated in it’s first tax moot court competition, the Mugel Tax Moot Court Competition at the State University of New York. The Alabama team advanced to the final round and placed second overall. In 2001 and 2002 the team stayed closer to home and competed in the National Tax Moot Court Team Competition in Tampa, Florida, winning the award for best brief in 2002. Professor Norman Stein serves as the team’s faculty advisor.

The Moot Courtroom (circular building in center) is the location of Trial Advocacy and Trial Appellate Competitions, both at the school level and at the regional championship level.

The National Criminal Law Moot Court Team. Alabama’s National Criminal Law Moot Court Team participated in the National Criminal Procedure Moot Court Competition in San Diego, California. Twenty-five teams from around the U.S. competed. Alabama’s team advanced to the quarter-finals. Vernon Barnett IV, law alumnus and an Assistant Attorney General for the State of Alabama, served as the team’s coach, and Professor Pamela H. Bucy served as faculty advisor for the team.

Intellectual Property Moot Court Team. In the Spring of 2002, the Law School, for the first time, entered a team in the Saul Lefkowitz Trademark Moot Court Competition. The Alabama Team took first place in the Southern regional competition, held in Atlanta, and advanced to the national competition in Washington, D.C. Professor Alan Durham serves as the team’s faculty advisor.
Employment Statistics

Employment Profile of the Class of 2001

According to a recent survey, the employment rate for our Law School's 2001 graduates was more than 98% within nine months of graduation. Of those employed, 79% remained in Alabama, while 21% accepted employment in other southern states and other regions of the United States.

Statistics show that 60.4% of our employed law graduates in the Class of 2001 accepted traditional jobs in general law practice with the remainder accepting other types of employment.

Graduates of the class of 2001 reported that their entry-level salaries ranged from $24,645 to $125,000. Salary figures showed a 25th percentile salary of $35,612 and a 75th percentile salary of $80,000, with an average salary of $55,875.

Grading and Ranking Practices

In 1990, the law faculty of The University of Alabama adopted the following voluntary norms and ranges governing the distribution of grades (recommended only).

For first-year classes and sectioned upper-level classes:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Grade</th>
<th>(Grade Points)</th>
<th>Norm</th>
<th>Range</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>A</td>
<td>(4.0)</td>
<td>10% of students</td>

</tr>
<tr>
<td>D+, F</td>
<td>(0-1.5)</td>
<td>10% of students</td>
<td>0-15% of students</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

For non-sectioned electives enrolling at least 40 students:

Student Organizations

Student organizations at The University of Alabama School of Law enhance the legal education experience and offer leadership opportunities. Geared toward both the personal interests and professional development of students, these organizations offer and promote Law Week activities, Homecoming activities, activities to benefit local charitable groups, student/faculty social gatherings, and a host of other events throughout the year. Faculty members and staff support the student groups by acting as advisors.

The ever-expanding list of student groups includes:
- American Bar Association, Law Student Division
- American Civil Liberties Union, Tuscaloosa/University Chapter
- Bench and Bar Legal Honor Society
- Black Law Students Association
- Business Law Society
- Career Services Board
- Civil Rights Students Association
- Christian Law Society

Law Journals

Second- and third-year students attending The University of Alabama School of Law gain experience in positions on the editorial staffs of several legal publications.

Alabama Law Review
Scholarly legal periodical published four times a year. Top 10% of beginning second-year students are automatically eligible. Remaining top 50% of beginning second-year students may compete for positions.

The Journal of the Legal Profession
First U.S. periodical dedicated to exploring ethical issues and problems confronting the legal profession. Beginning second-year students or more advanced students in the top 25% of their classes compete for editorial board positions. Published once annually.

Law and Psychology Review
One of the first periodicals to approach the discipline of law from a behavioral-sciences perspective. Published once a year and featuring both student-researched and written articles and submissions from legal scholars and psychologists of note.
