Part of the Law Commons
The University of Alabama School of Law aspires to provide its students with an excellent legal education for every career path they will follow. Since its establishment in 1872, the State’s only public law school has educated the leaders of Alabama’s political, business, and legal communities. The competitive admissions process results in a diverse student body that is bright, hardworking, and civic-minded. The Law School experienced a 30 percent increase in applications for Fall 2003; more than two-thirds of admittees enroll at Alabama. The broad-ranging curriculum – rich in traditional law and policy classes, courses in emerging areas of law, clinical offerings, and advocacy experiences – provides students with an analytical and experiential background for entering the legal profession. The Faculty is equally impressive. Outstanding teachers – committed to the classroom, accessible to students, and involved in research and public service – mentor the students and serve as role models. A devoted and highly regarded cadre of adjunct professors, from the practicing bar and bench, enhances our curriculum.

The educational environment at Alabama is strong. The Albritton Lecture Series brings U.S. Supreme Court Justices to Tuscaloosa, including Chief Justice William Rehnquist in October 2003. Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg will present the lecture in February 2004. Law professors from Harvard Law School and Columbia Law School will present the Hugo Black Lecture and the Daniel Meador Lecture, respectively, during the next academic year. Other outstanding visiting lecturers – presenting different perspectives on various subjects – also will speak at Alabama and teach classes in their areas of expertise in the coming year. The Law School’s Public Interest Law Institute and Disability Law Institute continue to provide additional learning and training opportunities. Our exchange programs with Australian National University and the University of Fribourg are flourishing. We continue to enjoy great successes with our trial advocacy and moot court teams. The trial advocacy program is ranked as the nation’s seventeenth best.

The University of Alabama is proud of our graduates, students, Faculty, and staff. We hope that our Top 50 national ranking for the fifth consecutive year symbolizes our traditions and progress. On behalf of The University of Alabama School of Law, I express appreciation to all those who recruit our law students for employment. Please tell me at any time how our law school can better serve the needs of the profession.

Career Services Office

The Career Services Office (CSO) offers a variety of services to our students, alumni, and employers. One of these services is the publication of this placement guide for employers. The guide is widely distributed to on-campus interviewers, the Alabama judiciary, job fair participants, and other employers who request copies. The Career Services Office also offers employers services such as on-campus interviewing, resume forwarding, free job posting on our Student Employment Bulletin and the Alumni Job Bulletin, and the opportunity to participate in job fairs and career-related programs.

On-Campus Interviewing
Reservations for fall on-campus interviews begin in the previous spring (usually late March). Employers may interview only second- and third-year students in the fall. Reservations for spring on-campus interviews begin the previous fall, usually in October. Employers may interview first-, second-, and third-year law students in the spring.

Resume Forwarding
The CSO will collect and forward resumes to employers who post job openings through our office. This process occurs year-round.

Student Employment Bulletin
Employers who wish to hire law clerks or recent graduates may post their job listing on our Student Employment Bulletin, which is available online and on our job boards within the law building.

Alumni Job Bulletin
Employers seeking experienced attorneys are encouraged to post their job opportunity in our Alumni Job Bulletin free of charge. The Alumni Job Bulletin is available online at www.law.ua.edu/placement. A password must be obtained from the CSO to gain access to the listings. Access is available only to University of Alabama law graduates. A hard copy may be purchased by non-graduates.

Programs
Programs sponsored by the CSO are designed to educate and inform our students as well as to broaden their knowledge of career opportunities.

Job Fairs
Employers may be interested in larger job fairs which are either co-sponsored by the Law School or in which we participate. The Law School participates in at least six such regional or national job fairs annually. If you want to take part in or receive additional information about any of these job fairs, please contact us.

Southeastern Law Placement Consortium (SELP). This job fair is held in Atlanta in the fall of each year. It is the oldest cooperative off-campus interviewing program for law firms. SELPC offers employers nationwide the opportunity to conveniently recruit summer associates and entry-level attorneys from twelve southeastern law schools. See www.selpc.org for more information.

Southeastern Minority Job Fair (SEMJF). This job fair is held in Atlanta each August for approximately 48 participating law schools. While it is designed primarily for minority students, this job fair is open to all students who are interested in interviewing with employers from around the nation. See www.semjf.org for more information.

The Big Apple Legal Recruiting Conference (BALRC). This newly developed job fair is held early Fall in New York City. It is sponsored by twenty U.S. law schools from thirteen states. BALRC provides employers the opportunity to interview students from all regions of the country. See www.law.uga.edu/nyc for more information.

Atlanta Legal Hiring Consortium (ALHC). This job fair is held each spring in Atlanta. It is sponsored by thirteen selected law schools from seven southeastern states. Small to medium-sized legal employers within the state of Georgia and surrounding areas attend. These legal employers recruit students for summer clerkships and permanent positions.

Patent Law Interview Program. This job fair is held in Chicago each August. Through this program, patent law employers are able to interview students from law schools around the country who meet patent bar examination requirements.

Equal Justice Works Career Fair. This job fair is held in Washington, D.C., each fall. It provides students and alumni a unique opportunity to collect information about and to interview with representatives of government agencies, legal-services offices, civil rights organizations, consumer protection groups, environmental advocacy groups, and other similar entities in one location.

Nondiscrimination Policy
The University of Alabama School of Law is committed to a policy of equal opportunity and of nondiscrimination based on race, color, national origin, religion, sex, age, handicap or disability, or sexual orientation. It does not discriminate on these factors in administering its educational policies; admission policies; employment, promotion, and compensation policies; financial aid and scholarship programs; and other school-related activities. Only employers in agreement with this policy may use the services of the Law School. By using the Law School’s services, employers assure the Law School that they observe this nondiscrimination policy. By state law, the military is allowed to interview at the Law School.
Employment Statistics

Employment Profile of the Class of 2002

The employment rate for our Law School's 2002 graduates was 99.4% within nine months of graduation. Of those employed, 77% remained in Alabama, while 23% accepted employment in other southern states and other regions of the United States.

Statistics show that 58.7% of our law graduates in the Class of 2002 accepted jobs in private law practice, with government being the second largest area of employment at 20.7%.

Our survey of the class of 2002 shows that entry-level salaries ranged from $20,000 to $125,000. Of known salaries, figures showed a 25th percentile salary of $40,000 and a 75th percentile salary of $80,000, with an average salary of $57,248.

The statistics below summarize the types of employment and geographic locations for the Class of 2002.

Trial and Appellate Advocacy

Trial Advocacy Teams

The University of Alabama School of Law's trial advocacy teams continue our tradition of excellence. Last year, both the U.S. News annual ranking of Law Schools and the National Institute for Trial Advocacy Tournament of Champions ranked Alabama's trial advocacy teams among the best in the Nation. Since 1990, Alabama teams have won two national championships and thirteen regional championships. This year the teams continued their winning tradition. The teams won the Southeast region of the National Trial Competition and placed second in the Nation in the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers Trial Competition. Participation on trial teams is based on an intra-school trial competition open to all second- and third-year students. As members of a trial team, students must spend many hours preparing for the competition. Trial team classes are capstone courses requiring students to integrate much of what they have studied in other law school courses. The trials require a thorough understanding of the rules of evidence and procedure and how these rules apply in real trials. Each case also requires an in-depth understanding of the specific cause of action, the potential remedies, and available defenses. At the competitions, students conduct a full trial before a real judge and a jury of practicing lawyers. The competitions are held in courthouses throughout the country. In recent years Alabama's trial teams have competed in Chicago, Los Angeles, Nashville, Dallas, Washington, New Orleans, San Antonio, Syracuse, San Diego and other locations. Professor Steve Emens and Robert Prince are the coaches for the Law School's trial teams.

Appellate Advocacy Competitions

John A. Campbell Moot Court Competition. During the spring semester, second-year students may choose to participate in the John A. Campbell Moot Court Competition. From this competition, twenty-five students are selected to be members of the next year's Campbell Moot Court Board. These students conduct the next year's competition.

National Moot Court Competition. Four students (three team members and one student manager) are selected from the Moot Court Board to be members of the National Moot Court Team. Coached by Professor Carol Rice Andrews, this team competes in regional and national competitions involving constitutional and other federal law issues.

Phillip C. Jessup International Law Moot Court Team. Six students from the Moot Court Board are selected to be members of the Phillip C. Jessup International Law Moot Court Team. These students write briefs and act as oral advocates in hypothetical cases before the International Court of Justice. Alabama's team traditionally does very well in the regional competition and has advanced to the international rounds in Washington, D.C. two of the last three years. Professor Suzette Malveaux serves as the faculty advisor.

Environmental Law Moot Court Team. The University of Alabama School of Law also sponsors a National Environmental Law Moot Court Team. The team has performed quite well during the first four years of its existence. The 2000 team, for example, competed in the National Competition at Pace University in New York and finished second out of a tough field of 63 teams from Canada and the U.S. Team members also received individual recognition including four best oral advocate awards and two second-best oral advocate awards. The 2002 team advanced to the semi-final round and amassed two best oralist awards. The National Environmental Law Moot Court Team is coached by Professor Bill Andreen.

Robert F. Wagner National Labor and Employment Moot Court Team. Three students are selected from the Campbell Moot Court Board to be members of the Wagner Labor and Employment Moot Court Team. The competition is hosted by New York Law School in downtown Manhattan and is the largest student-administered moot court competition in the nation. The team writes an appellate brief and presents oral arguments in a hypothetical case which involves current issues of labor law and employment law and competes against teams from law schools throughout the country. The team is coached by Adjunct Professor Roger Williams.

Frederick Douglass Moot Court Team. The Frederick Douglass Moot Court Competition Team participates in an inter-law school appellate competition sponsored annually by the Black Law Students Association. Second- and third-year students are selected from an intra-law school competition. Professor Jerome A. Hoffman will continue to serve as the team’s coach.

Duberstein Bankruptcy Moot Court Team. Alabama’s 1998 Duberstein Bankruptcy Moot Court Team won first place in the National competition hosted by St. Johns University in New York. The 1999 Duberstein Bankruptcy Moot Court Team won third place in the National competition and ranked number one in the best brief competition. The 2001 and 2002 teams advanced to the semi- and quarter-finals, respectively. Mark P. Williams, a Birmingham alumnus and past Chairman of the Bankruptcy and Commercial Law Section of the Alabama State Bar, serves as advisor for the team.

National Tax Moot Court Team. Competition in Tampa, Florida, winning the award for best brief in 2002. Thad Davis, an attorney in Estate Planning at Sirote & Permutt in Birmingham, serves as advisor for the team.

National Criminal Law Moot Court Team. Alabama’s National Criminal Law Moot Court Team participated in the National Criminal Procedure Moot Court Competition in San Diego, California. Twenty-five teams from around the U.S. competed. Alabama’s team advanced to the quarter-finals. Vernon Barnett IV, law alumnus and an Assistant Attorney General for the State of Alabama, served as the team’s coach, and Professor Pamela H. Bucy served as faculty advisor for the team.

Intellectual Property Moot Court Team. The law school’s Intellectual Property team has participated in the Giles S. Rich Moot Court Competition and the Saul Lefkowitz Trademark Moot Court Competition, where in 2002 Alabama won the Southern Regional Competition. Professor Alan Durham serves as the team’s faculty advisor.

Law Journals

Second- and third-year students at The University of Alabama School of Law gain experience in positions on the editorial staffs of three legal publications.

♦ Alabama Law Review
Scholarly legal periodical published four times a year. Top 10% of beginning second-year students are automatically eligible. Remaining top 50% of beginning second-year students may compete for positions.

♦ The Journal of the Legal Profession
First U.S. periodical dedicated to exploring ethical issues and problems confronting the legal profession. Beginning second-year students or more advanced students in the top 25% of their classes compete for editorial board positions. Published once annually.

♦ Law and Psychology Review
One of the first periodicals to approach the discipline of law from a behavioral-sciences perspective. Published once a year and featuring both student-researched and written articles and submissions from legal scholars and psychologists of note.

Chief Judge Harold Albritton (Class of 1960) of the Middle District of Alabama spoke at the Public Interest Institute’s induction ceremony for the Student Board in 2002.
